PREPARATION FOR ULTRASOUNDS

For detailed information about ultrasounds and preparation, go to advancedwomensimaging.com.au

For pregnancy and pelvic scans, please have a partially filled bladder. Empty your bladder 1 hour before your appointment, drink 2 glasses of water and try not to empty your bladder again until after your appointment. You may eat normally.

Some pregnancy scans may also require transvaginal ultrasound.

Pelvic examinations usually require both transabdominal (through the abdomen) and transvaginal (through the vagina) ultrasound. Your privacy will be respected at all times.

Sonohysterograms and HyCoSy procedures do not require a full bladder, unless a pelvic scan is also being performed on the same day. Please discuss preparations for these procedures when booking, or go to our website.

Please bring all previous scans, reports or results with you.
